□ Overview of the analysis

○ Objective

- The objective of the analysis is to understand the needs of the people, including the actual policy target (expectant mothers), regarding pregnancy and childbirth, and find out services that can be provided proactively in one place.

※ Organized by: Namyangju City/ Supported by: Ministry of the Interior and Safety

○ The data analyzed

- What people think about public services for expectant mothers
- Any inconvenience people have suffered using the services and improvement they want
- What they expect from One-Stop Services

○ Data source

- Social media analysis: more than 13 million posts on some 80 websites related to pregnancy and childbirth

※ The reference period: September 2012 - August 2015

※ Analyzed by: Daumsoft Inc.

- Mobile survey: 518 expectant mothers across the nation

※ Survey period: September 7 - September 12, 2015

※ Surveyed by: Metrix Inc.

□ Key results

① Expectant mothers' views on health centers and hospitals

- On health centers: Expectant mothers were well aware of what benefits and support they can get from health centers but dissatisfied with different standards and requirements depending on where you live; and most of them answered “I don't know” for other various support policies for expectant mothers.
- On hospitals (OB/GYN offices): Expectant mothers expressed positive views on hospitals. They felt hospitals were more expensive but had cleaner facilities than health centers and close to their residences.
- On both health centers and hospitals: Words, such as “good”, “recommend”, “kind”, came out.

② Keywords about government services

- Regarding government services for expectant mothers, the most popular terms found in social media posts include “vaccination” followed by “postpartum helper”, “iron (folic acid) supplements” and “classes for expectant mothers”.
- Lately, the ranking of “blood test” is going up increasingly.
- As to policies and services, “i-Sarang Card (a card issued and required to get childcare benefits)” was the most popular term, followed by “childcare benefits”, “childbirth subsidy” and “classes for expectant mothers”.
- For policies and services from health centers, “prenatal tests”, “breast pump rental” and “hearing screening” were ranked high.

③ Improvements expectant mothers want

- Regarding government services, the first request from expectant mothers was an “expanded scope of support” (e.g. to include postpartum care and helpers).
- There were other requests, such as a “one-stop application system for services (which they currently have to apply for separately)”, followed by “simplified application procedures” and “prior notification of government services” (in order of frequency).

④ Expectations for One-Stop Services

- For One-Stop Services, which allows people to apply for various government services for expectant mothers in one place, 73% of expectant mothers surveyed answered it was helpful.
- Those aged 30 and higher in particular showed a high level of satisfaction at over 76%.
- Expectant mothers had very high expectations and showed a strong support for a future with customized information provided for different regions and customer needs and multiple services starting at once from the moment you find out you are pregnant.

Reference 3	Results of an online and offline survey of expectant mothers used to design One-Stop Services for Pregnancy and Childbirth
-------------	---

□ Overview

- (Purpose) The government tried to get as much feedback as possible from expectant mothers by keeping open the private web service (happymom.symflow.com), used during the offline demonstration of One-Stop Services for Pregnancy and Childbirth (Sept. 21, 2015), on the government website until October 10 (Pregnant Women's Day).
 - ※ The offline event participants were asked to share the web service address with other expectant mothers, including on online communities for expectant mothers.
- (Period/target) September 21 - October 10, 2015/ expectant mothers and anyone interested in pregnancy and childbirth
 - ※ More than 150 offline participants and 378 online participants were asked to choose two possible answers for each question.
- (Questions) When and where do you want to get information on pregnancy and childbirth? (two multiple-choice questions); Do you have any suggestion on how to improve pregnancy and childbirth support services? (one subjective question)

□ Offline participants (more than 150 people)

- The offline event was attended by the Minister of the Interior and Safety, Chairperson of the Government 3.0 Committee, the Deputy Minister of Government Innovation and Organization

Management of the Ministry of the Interior and Safety and the head of Jung district, Seoul.

- Citizens, including expectant mothers living in the neighborhood, childcare bloggers, civic groups, experts and accredited news reporters, also participated.

□ Results

- (When people want to get information on pregnancy and childbirth) The respondents answered they want to get the information ① when they are pregnant (314 people/45%) or ② when they are newly married (192 people/28%).

※ ① When you are pregnant (45%), ② When you are newly married (28%), ③ When you are preparing for marriage (18%), ④ Others (9%)

- A lot of respondents (46%) wanted to be informed about the services before they are pregnant, such as when they just got married or when they are preparing for marriage.

⇒ This shows the need for prior notification: when people make marriage registrations, they should be informed about the integrated application system for pregnancy support services, so that no one misses out on the services they can get from health centers just because of lack of information.

- (Where people want to get information on pregnancy and childbirth)
Respondents said they wanted to get the information at ① hospitals (293 people/44%) or ② online (250people/37%).

※ ① Hospitals (44%), ② Online (37%), ③ Health centers (12%), ④ Community centers (6%), ⑤ Others (1%)

⇒ Promotional activities for pregnancy support services should be strengthened, including by placing leaflets or brochures at hospitals; for services people can get after childbirth, an integrated application system should be provided at district community centers, with a long-term plan to adopt an online system and make it the norm.

- (How to improve pregnancy and childbirth support services)
The respondents said they wanted to be informed through brochures or leaflets placed at hospitals or health centers, or at community centers when registering their marriage, and apply for the services in a simpler manner, for instance, through an online system.

- Some said they did not know much about the service types and benefits, suggesting the need for more promotional efforts.
- Others pointed out the difficulty and inconvenience in making several visits to apply for different services, and completing and preparing multiple application forms and required documents.

⇒ Information channels should be diversified: community centers, health centers, city halls or borough offices should provide information on the integrated application system for pregnancy support services, and people should be allowed to apply for them by visiting only one of those places as well as online.

Reference 4	Results of the 2017 public satisfaction level survey (on One-Stop Services for Pregnancy and Childbirth) by the Ministry of the Interior and Safety

□ Overview

- (Objective) The survey is designed to measure how much people are satisfied with the quality of major government programs, including One-Stop Services for Pregnancy and Childbirth, which is part of the government's Customized Services for Life Stages.
 - The ultimate goal of the survey is to understand what people want and realize a public service system that can make a real difference in people's lives.
- (Subject) People aged 20 and older and experts in relevant fields
- (Method) Offline and online surveys
- (Period) October 27 - November 24, 2017

□ Results

- ◇ More emphasis was put on the feedback from the ordinary people (70%) than the experts (30%) to ensure how ordinary citizens feel is more and better reflected in government policies.
 - » The survey includes seven evaluation items of “policy awareness”, “democratic nature”, “proactive nature”, “responsiveness”, “performance”, “satisfaction levels” and “suggestions and recommendations”, on a scale from one to seven each, which was later combined and converted to a 100-point scale.

- (Ordinary people) The overall satisfaction level score was 72.4 points: by item, the score for “proactive nature” was highest at 72.7 points while the “democratic nature” score was lowest at 71.0 points.
- (Experts) The overall satisfaction level score was 79.8 points: by item the score for “democratic nature” was highest at 82.5 points while the score for “performance (effectiveness)” was lowest at 75.7 points.
- (Suggestions and recommendations) People proposed a simplified and easier system to use, more active promotional efforts for people, and moving away from the myopic focus on short-term results.
